

ORCHARD STORY
IS UPHELDWitnesses In Corroboration
at Haywood Trial

SLAYER IS IDENTIFIED

Man Knew Him as "Barry" at Time of Bradley Explosion--Post Office Men
Called About Money Orders.

Boise, June 15.—The trial of William D. Haywood was resumed yesterday, with L. B. Guibbini, dairyman of San Francisco, on the stand. Mr. Guibbini is the man who introduced Harry Orchard known as "Barry" to the servants in the Bradley household. He said that Orchard came to his store and hung around and spent considerable money, and asked Guibbini to get him a room in the neighborhood.

Guibbini saw Orchard moving his luggage the night before the Bradley house was dynamited. He also saw the poisoned milk. Guibbini described the result of the bomb Orchard placed at the front door leading to the Bradley apartments in Washington street. The whole front of the house was blown out. He saw Orchard at his store the day the explosion occurred. The defense moved to strike out the testimony of the witness as not connecting Haywood with the offense charged. The motion was overruled.

Attorney Darrow, on cross-examination, tried to learn the conditions under which the witness was brought to Boise to testify. Guibbini said the detectives told him he had to come to Boise and there was no use "trying to dodge it." Witness got $200 to cover the expenses of the trip. He was told to tell the truth. Guibbini said Orchard told him he lived by gambling at night. He slept during the day time.

The next witness was Hull McLaughlin, the assistant postmaster at San Francisco, who was interrogated as to a registered letter Orchard said he received from Pettibone while in San Francisco. Orchard said he was going by the name of "John Dempsey" and that time Pettibone used the name of "J. Wolf" in transmitting the letter which contained $100.

Postmaster McLaughlin produced the registry records of the San Francisco office which show the receipt of the letter in question on Aug. 13, 1904. The envelope was postmarked "Denver, August 10, 1904." The records showing the delivery of the letter from "J. Wolf" to "John Dempsey" were admitted in evidence by Judge Wood over the protest of the defense who objected that there was nothing to connect the defendant, Haywood, with the matter. The receipt signature "John Dempsey" was written so badly that Haywood's attorneys insisted it be not read but submitted to the jury for their inspection and individual conclusion.

The next step in tracing the letter was the introduction of Miss Pearl Moore of the Denver postoffice. Miss Moore was a substitute in the registry division in Denver in 1904. She identified an entry which she wrote in the "registry book" which showed the receipt of a letter from "J. Wolf," 1725 Stout street Denver, addressed to "J. Dempsey, San Francisco." The record was admitted in evidence.

The prosecution then turned to the task of corroborating Orchard's testimony as to his experience in the Vinclitor mine at Cripple Creek, Colorado. L. Harrah was called. The witness worked on a cage in the Vinclitor mine in 1903 at the time Orchard said he and a companion went into the mine to set off a carload of powder they had discovered. They were discovered by a cage man but drove him back by shooting at him. Harrah told on the stand today of having discovered a man in one of the tunnels.

Lost $18 in Cash as a Result of a Celebration—Thugs Arrested.

Boston, June 15.—Clay Loomis of St. Albans, Vt., attempted to celebrate his 21st birthday in Boston with the result that he was robbed of $18 by three strangers. Loomis is a Boston Elevated conductor on the Forest Hills line. In Jamaica Plains there is a gang that is known as the Keeves gang and it was three of the gang's members that approached Loomis, told him it was a pleasant day, then while one held him the other two went through his pockets and took $18.

The man pleaded for mercy. In answer he was taken to a vacant house and as a farewell greeting the members of the gang choked him into unconsciousness. On being revived Loomis gave a description of his assailants. The three thugs were later arrested and identified by Loomis.

A LINCOLN TABLET.

Will Be Placed in Library By Ladies of G. A. R.

Several applications for membership were received at a meeting of the ladies of the Grand Army held last evening. It was decided to place one of the Lincoln memorial tablets in the library building. This tablet has the complete text of President Lincoln's Gettysburg address. The top of the tablet has the full-sized corps badges of the seven Union army corps that were engaged in the battle. Between these badges is a representation of the grass and wild flowers common to the fields around Gettysburg.

The heads of the four bolts by which the tablet is fastened to the wall represent G. A. R. buttons, greatly enlarged.

One of the missions of the Ladies of the G. A. R. is to instill in the minds and hearts of the rising generation love of country and home. The writer of this was asked to visit the public schools and report the Pre-memorial exercises. After listening to the exercises and seeing the streets filled with the bright, eager faces of the boys and girls, all carrying flags, the thought came "Honor to whom honor is due," the patriotic American teacher. When the temple of this great nation is complete and the question is asked "Who did the most for the erection of this temple?" the answer will be the patriotic American teacher who moulded and inspired the heart and brain of the American youth and sent them forth thoroughly equipped for the duties of American manhood.

CRIMES BRED BY
TOO SPEEDY LIVESPeople Care More For Almighty Dollar
Than For Children, Says Chicago
Judge.

Chicago, Ill., June 15.—Judge New-comer in court yesterday, talked of the mothers' search after social success and the fathers' hunt after the almighty dollar. Said he: "A long time ago I did not believe there was such a disease as skepticism. But there is. My experience as a magistrate has shown me the three types of persons who steal from stores. The explanation of all is—parents are leading too strenuous lives. They care more for the dollar than for the security of their children; and thus, in the mad and greedy pursuit, they neglect to give their offspring the care and attention that are essential to virtue and good character."

"Mothers are as much to blame as fathers. They worship fashions and fashions too much, leaving their daughters to do as they wish without restraining hands or maternal advice."

CLAIMS DIAMOND SWINDLE.

St. Johnsbury Man Sues Former Jeweler
Who Sold Him Ring.

St. Johnsbury, June 15.—The case of George Caldwell vs. C. E. Simanton, a former jeweler, who last June sold the plaintiff a diamond ring which he claimed was bought by the late Horace Wakefield 31 years ago for $800, came up in Caledonia county court this week. Caldwell alleges that he paid $450 for the ring and found it was not as represented.

It is alleged that Simanton also sold a diamond ring to Walter Holtman of Woodsville, N. H., for $250, under the same representation as in the case of Caldwell. The arguments were not completed when court adjourned for the day. H. B. Howe appears for Simanton while Porter & Simonds represent the plaintiff.

The grand jury was discharged Thursday, having considered five cases, returning two true bills and three not found.

At The Opera House Tonight.

When Lillian Mortimer was looking for a foundation upon which to build a play and hit on the title of "No Mother to Guide Her" it would have been difficult to find a subject that would have given greater scope for the talents of an actress than the young woman as she. The title of "No Mother to Guide Her," Miss Mortimer's manager informs us was the first part of the play to be written and from that as a base she has constructed a story of such absorbing heart interest—such dramatic intensity as to place her among the foremost of the American playwrights, nor has the human side of life been overlooked in the building up of this performance. While the interest in the central figures is never lost for a moment, throughout it all runs a vein of comedy that is pure and wholesome. Of this comedy is an exchange aptly remarks, this play loses nothing at the hands of the very competent company producing it and with the elaborate scenic effects with which the drama is mounted rounds out a thoroughly satisfactory performance. At the opera house tonight.
